

Dear Friend,

A few weeks ago, our team had the enormous privilege of welcoming our folks—ambassadors, participant advisory committee members, community partner organizations, and affiliated researchers—to Stanford University for a PRIDEnet Summit.

We oriented and updated on both The PRIDE Study and the All of Us Research Program's efforts to include and serve LGBTQ+ communities. We sought input on issues like future sustainability and developing The PRIDE Study participant cohort. We recorded ideas for solving our most vexing problems and enjoyed social and networking time to renew relationships.

Thanks for all you do in your communities as advocates, participants, researchers, providers, and more to move LGBTQ+ health forward. There's no greater joy than working with brilliant and committed people toward a common vision.

Together in community,

Carolyn Hunt

NEW STUDY:

What Mental Health Providers Want to Know About Helping LGBTQ+ People

UCSF School of Nursing PhD Candidate and The PRIDE Study Affiliated Research Team member Kristen Clark, published a new paper titled: "Supporting sexual and gender minority health: Research priorities from mental health professionals." It was published in the Journal of Gay & Lesbian Mental Health. These findings show that there are opportunities to improve the information that mental health providers have, so that they can better care for LGBTQ+ people.

The PRIDE Team in the news!

"Largely, research institutions and medical establishments and systems really haven't thought about LGBTQ+ folks. There's lots of invisibility, [lots of researchers] just going on assumptions that everybody is cisgender and straight."

Bisexual Health Awareness Month

This month we highlighted our community partner, Bisexual Resource Center \(BRC\), and resources for Bisexual Health Awareness month. Healthy social connections that affirm all parts of a person's core identity are vital to becoming resilient. The bisexual+ community includes a wide variety and many intersections of identities. Our community is at its healthiest when we are inclusive and affirming of everyone under the bi+ umbrella. Learn more at www.bihealthmonth.org.
